KILLING OF ROSENTHAL.

Lieut, Becker Feared Gambler Would Tell of Graft.

New York, Feb. 25.-The crime for which Charles B cker and the four gunmen received sentence of death stirred every stratum of New York society and its echoes were heard in the recent city campaign, Herman Rosenthal, a gambler, was shot down early on the morning of July 15, 1912, in front of the Hotel Matrop le, in the heart of the tenderloin. Eecker was a police lieutenant in charge of the "strong arm equad," whose duties were to keep in subjection the gangs of the city and to regulate gamb ing places and and unprofitable crops, do not come houses of ill fame. Rose, Webber and Vallon said that the police lieutenant made use of his position to collect money from these houses as the price of letting them do business. Rosenthal knew of these operations, they said, and having a grievance agair s' B cker, was about to turn over his evidence to the district attorney.

GRATITUDE.

A Derby lady has just received a Aegacy of $500 "in remembrance of a bunch of flowers." Such romantic rewards of little acts of kindness are not uncommon, and some curious instances of the kind are given by the author of "From Piccadilly to Pall Mall." Years ago a tradesman, whose name is now a household word, was employed in a modest capacity in a West end shop. While exhibiting some delicate ware to the very first customer he served he let it fall and break. The customer, a doctor, good-naturedly took the blame and paid for the broken article. Years show that, in continuous wheat farmhim of the incident, and settled on him $5,000 a year for life.

SUCCESS WITH CLOVER

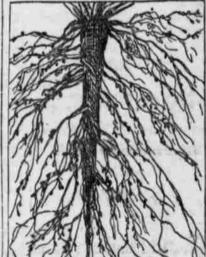

WORTHY OF MORE GENERAL GROWTH BY OUR FARMERS.

Crop Should Not Be Looked Upon as Curs for All Ills of Soil, but as an Important Factor in Renovation of the Land.

Clover has been grown with varied success in practically every state in the Union. Its beneficial action on wide range of nurse crops with which it can be grown, and its excellence as a hay and pasture crop, all serve to commend it to a place in our crop meeting for its final action. ping system and prove it worthy of more general growth by our farmers. Complaints of worn-out soils, weeds from farmers who have made clover an important factor in the cropping system.

Clover should not be looked upon as a cure for all the ills of the soil but as an important factor in soil renovation and in maintaining or increasing the supply of vegetable mathave the power of absorbing the nitrogen of the air and leaving it in the soil for the use of succeeding crops system that leaves a considerable amount of vegetable matter in the soil. This decaying vegetable matter proves beneficial, in times of drouth, in holding soil moisture. It also assists in keeping light soils from "washing" and "blowing," and heavy soils from "baking."

The clover roots grow quite deeply. penetrating the subsoil and breaking the soil suitable for crop growth is made deeper and the drainage is much improved. Results of experiments

On heavy soils, clover should be grown in four and ficially grown in a three-year rotation.

In growing clover, it is a matter of wisdom to sow only the best of seed. Do not sow the seed until it has been given a germination test. This can ensily be made by means of two plates and a cotton cloth. The seed should be free from weed seeds and other adulterations. Buy seed only from reliable sources, and so far as possible, use home-grown seed, when it is of strong vitality and known purity.

Sowing Clover.

Clover should not be sown too deeply; yet it is desirable to sow it sufficlently deep so that it will neither blow out nor dry out easily. The amount of seed per acre will vary ness is not too small in his way of slightly with the method of seeding. It is believed that in general farmers sow too little, rather than too much, seed. When sown separately it should be at the rate of six to ten pounds for red and mammoth, four to six for alsike, three to four for white.

How "Teetotaler" Originated.

Teetotaler, the term applied to an abstainer from all fermented liquors, originated with Richard Turner, an artisan of Preston, England, who, contending for the principle at a temperance meeting in 1833, asserted that "Nothing but te-te-total will do." The word was immediately adopted.
